

Leadership & Management

Recommended Reading List

Whilst most of my family and friends read fiction books for enjoyment and entertainment purposes, I always manage to find the next popular business book to read about good management and leadership practise. Each book I have read has provided much inspiration and lots of great ideas, which I have gradually put into practise over the years.

With so many business books out there the challenge starts with choosing the right books and then finding the time to read. I hope the list of recommended reading below helps with your research challenge, as all of these books have been rated highly by many readers over the years and I have also personally read most of them. For those of you struggling to find the time to read, most of the books in this list can also be found in the form of book summaries (8 to 16 pages covering the main ideas in the book), however reading the books will strengthen the messages contained within.

So for those of you committed to your personal and professional development, I say happy reading!

- Natasa Gadzuric,
Principal, Sustainable People Solutions.

- The Seven Habits of Highly Effective People - Stephen R Covey
- First, Break All the Rules - Marcus Buckingham and Curt Coffman
- Built to Last - Jim Collins, Jerry I. Porras
- True North – Discover Your Authentic Leadership - Bill George with Peter Sims
- The Five Dysfunctions of a Team - Patrick Lencioni
- Managing the Professional Service Firm - David Maister
- The Trusted Advisor - David H. Maister, Charles H. Green & Robert M. Galford
- The Leadership Challenge - James M. Kouzes and Barry Z. Posner
- Primal Leadership: Learning to Lead with Emotional Intelligence - Daniel Goleman, Richard E. Boyatzis, Annie McKee
- Crucial Conversations - Kerry Patterson
- Good to Great - Jim Collins
- Leading Change - John P. Kotter
- Drive - Daniel H. Pink
- The Fifth Discipline - Peter Senge
- Winning - Jack Welch
- Delivering Happiness - Tony Hseih
- Lean In - Sheryl Sandberg
- The One Minute Manager - Kenneth Blanchard, Spencer Johnson
- Getting Naked: A Business Fable About The Three Fears That Sabotage Client Loyalty - Patrick Lencioni
- Start with Why: How Great Leaders Inspire Everyone to Take Action - Simon Sinek